For more information on Photoshop Elements, check out the following section. Illustrator: The most creative vector program Illustrator is a vector graphics program that enables you to draw editable shapes, lines, and shapes. Each layer can contain various types of shapes (which include text) and even paths or drawings. Illustrator's features can include path editing, as well as vector drawing. With path editing, you can shape any type of shape, such as a letter, or any other type of simple shape. You can even dynamically change shape size or paths while editing. The result is that Illustrator is perfect for your doodling and making shapes. You can also use text tools to create type. You can add animation and even motion effects to your drawings with keyframes. Illustrator also enables you to animate a series of drawings, or use motion paths to create motion graphics. Illustrator has many other special effects to enhance your designs. You can manipulate the background to create artistic effects, make unique gradient effects, and a number of other special effects. Illustrator's interface is easy to use, so you can start creating drawings and shapes quickly. For more information on Illustrator, check out the next section. Illustrator Elements: Digital drawing perfection Illustrator Elements' features are similar to the features in Illustrator, but a lot easier to use. The interface is much simpler and easier to use than that of Illustrator. You can start by drawing simple straight lines with the pen tool. You can also add basic bevels and drop shadows to your drawings. You can even work with an Action Set. What makes Illustrator Elements unique is its many creative effects. How to change color of image in Adobe Photoshop Elements In this article, you will learn how to change color of image in Adobe Photoshop Elements. You can edit color of image in Adobe Photoshop Elements using hue, saturation, and lightness option. The basic method of change color is hue (with replacement), saturation and lightness or color balance. For more details, read below. The reference of color change: However, it is not possible to change color of an image in the basic color. The following image shows that how we can change color of a selected image using the basic color option. Basically, Photoshop Elements use the basic color option to change color of an image using different hue, saturation and lightness (HSL) options. Following is the summary of this option: Hue: When you select the hue option, it will change the color of all the pixels in your image in that color. For example, to make it more vivid, it's recommended to select pure hues such as red, yellow, orange, purple, blue, green or other similar colors. When you select the option, it will change the color of all the pixels in your image in that color. For example, to make it more vivid, it's recommended to select pure hues such as red, yellow, orange, purple, blue, green or other similar colors. Saturation: This option will change the saturation of pixels in the image, so that more or less color is available. For example, to make an image more vivid, it is recommended to use low saturation. This option will change the saturation of pixels in the image, so that more or less color is available. For example, to make an image more vivid, it is recommended to use low saturation. Lightness: This option will change the brightness of pixels in the image. For example, to make it more light, it is recommended to use low lightness. This option will change the brightness of pixels in the image. For example, to make it more light, it is recommended to use low lightness. Secondary option: If you have a look at the screen shot above, we can see that the image has no color at all. The image is really very dark. To bring it to the desired level, simply click the Color Balance option and than change the lightness. However, it is not possible to change color of an image in the basic

Q: How to prove $\rho = 0.5$ is the maximum eigenvalue of ρ ? Given $\rho = \frac{1}{2}(\sigma_1 - \sigma_2)$, σ_i are the 2×2 Pauli matrices, how can I show that $\rho = 0.5$ is the maximum eigenvalue of ρ ? I have no idea how to do that. A: By definition, ρ is a Hermitian matrix, so it has a real and an imaginary part ρ_r and ρ_i . Then, for every pair of unit vectors \mathbf{v}, \mathbf{w} , we get that $\mathbf{v}^\dagger \rho \mathbf{w} = \rho_r \mathbf{v}^\dagger \mathbf{w} + i \rho_i \mathbf{v}^\dagger \mathbf{w}$. Now, since $\sigma_i^2 = 1$, then $\rho_i = 0$ and $\rho_r = \frac{1}{2}$, but if $\rho_r = \frac{1}{2}$ then $\rho_i^2 = 0$, which is nonsense. Therefore, it must be that $\rho_r = -\frac{1}{2}$, and then we have that $\rho = i \sigma_y$. Then, ρ has the only positive eigenvalue, for the corresponding eigenvector is simply $\frac{1}{\sqrt{2}} \mathbf{i}$. A: Basically, there are four ways. Using the spectral theorem of Hermitian matrices, since ρ is Hermitian and traceless, it can be written as $\rho = \sum_i \lambda_i \sigma_i$ where λ_i are the eigenvalues. Since ρ is also positive semi-definite, it has only one positive eigenvalue and its corresponding eigenvector is $(1, 0, 0)^T$ (up to a factor). Thus $\lambda_1 = \frac{1}{2}$. By direct calculation, it
